Single Cell Genomics: Technologies, Analysis, and Applications

Description

This course is a weekly seminar course that will cover selected readings in a focused topic in bioinformatics. This year's topic is Single Cell Genomics: Technologies, Analysis, and Applications. Single-cell genomics allows us to interrogate cell-to-cell differences and uncover the roles of cell-specific populations in disease. This term we will cover single cell sequencing technologies and data generation, computational analysis, and open challenges for a variety of applications, including transcriptomics, imaging, rare cell subsets, cell fate, and cancer heterogeneity. In addition to critically reading and assessing papers in the field, students will each lead a weekly paper discussion to develop and hone presentation skills

Prerequisite: DMICE BCB track or instructor permission.

Attendance and Participation

Students are expected to critically read the weekly assigned literature. In-class participation will include guided discussion of the assigned readings, responses to presenter questions, and completing constructive weekly evaluations for student presenters.

Student Presentations

Student presenters will be responsible for presenting the material for their assigned week to the class and leading discussion on a critical analysis of the assigned paper(s). This includes relevant background information, methods, key results, and major conclusions. Presenters should be comfortable explaining and discussing all figures, tables, and methods (including information in supplementary methods/materials as necessary). Assigned reading material should be reviewed in full with sufficient time to clarify any issues with the mentored teaching assistant and/or instructor as needed.

Grading Criteria, Academic Standards, & Release of Final Grades:

Graduate Studies in the OHSU School of Medicine is committed to providing grades to students in a timely manner. Course instructors will provide students with information in writing at the beginning of each course that describes the grading policies and procedures including but not limited to evaluation criteria, expected time needed to grade individual student examinations and type of feedback they will provide.

All coursework applied towards degree requirements must meet the minimum cumulative grade point average of at least 3.0.

Refer to the School of Medicine Graduate Studies Forms & Policies for withdraw, incomplete, and in-progress grading standards. Final course grades will be posted with the OHSU Registrar the Monday following the last day of the term. On those occasions when a grade has not been submitted by the deadline, the following procedure shall be followed:

1. The Department*/Program Coordinator will immediately contact the Instructor requesting the missing grade, with a copy to the Program Director and Registrar.
2. If the grade is still overdue by the end of next week, the Department*/Program Coordinator will email the Department Chair directly, with a copy to the Instructor and Program Director requesting resolution of the missing grade.

3. If, after an additional week the grade is still outstanding, the student or Department*/Program Coordinator may petition the Office of Graduate Studies for final resolution.

*For courses that are run by a specific department.

For the conjoined courses (course number is preceded by CON) that are run by Graduate Studies.
